IRA Contribution. You must have an existing T. Rowe Price IRA.

Contribution will be credited for the tax year in which it was received unless you write the prior year under the Tax Year column. Contributions for the prior tax year must be postmarked on or before the tax filing deadline (generally April 15)—not including extensions. See IRS Publication 590-A, Contributions to Individual Retirement Arrangements (IRAs) for information on IRA contribution limits. To request the deposit be labeled as an IRA rollover check the box below.

- IRA Rollover Contribution. You must make the rollover contribution by the 60th day after you receive the distribution from your IRA or retirement plan.

2 Investment Allocation

Complete this table to allocate your investment to the appropriate fund (if applicable). The tax year is only required if the IRA contribution is for a prior year. If there are residual investment allocation amounts, we will default investment to the first fund listed.

Check if starting a new mutual fund investment:

- New Mutual Fund. If this is a new mutual fund, we will use the account registration of the account number provided in Section 1 to model the new fund. Minimum investment per fund is $2,500 for a taxable account and $1,000 for an IRA. All services and beneficiaries (if applicable) will carry over from the existing account except systematic services. The cost basis method (if applicable) will be applied from the existing account, unless a different method is provided on a separate page. Visit troweprice.com/taxplanning for information on cost basis.
- New Brokerage Advantage Mutual Fund. For a new mutual fund in your Brokerage Advantage account, check to request reinvestment:
 - Reinvest dividends
 - Reinvest capital gains
